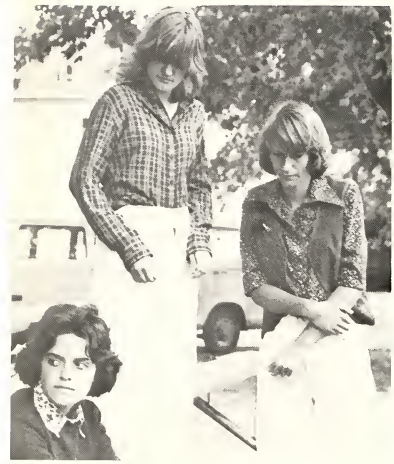
"It goes so fast.
We don't have time to look at one another."



"Do any human beings ever realize life while they live it—every, every minute?"

"Oh, earth, you're too wonderful for anybody to realize you."

From Thornton Wilder's Our Town.

Social Studies

Greg Smucker

For many students, social studies means a required U.S. history course as a junior and a government course in the senior year. After lugging the four inch thick history book to class for 13 weeks, some open-minded students begin to take an active interest in the origins of this country.

Although we want to know who? when? and how?, the important questions are why? what were the consequences? and what can it teach us?

The thoughts, actions, and reactions of groups and individuals are under scrutiny in social studies. As a result, we become more aware of the cause and effect relationships that shape our world today and which will be in the history books of tomorrow.

English

This year, Bethany offered two new electives in addition to the four basic English classes. The Creative Writing and Journalism class experimented with poetry, descriptive writing, and feature and editorial writing. Second semester, the Drama and Advanced Speech class concentrated on oral interpretation, character creation, and debate.

Freshmen spent thier time studying literature and grammar. They even tackled Romeo and Juliet in the first two months of school. Sophomores spent more time writing compositions and giving speeches, with literature second semester. Juniors disected early American writers up to the 20th century, while Seniors plowed through The Odyssey and Hamlet in addition to college prep work.

Our English teachers ought to be commended for the schemes they dream up to keep us alert year after year after year. In what other classes do you demonstrate how to tie a shoe, tour a cemetery, or listen to Poe in a dark room complete with a flickering candle?

German — Spanish

German class is
— sorting out a mad array of word endings
— diligently speaking "auf Deutsch"
— poring over the famous comic book collection of Frau Gross's (or looking at the pictures)
— cramming for a diktat
— begging to sing, and doing so every chance there is — unscrambling German dialogues
— uttering a weary "Auf Wiedersehen" as we escape from the room.

The person who invented the world challenge must certainly have had foreign languages in mind. And yet, to the amazement of each participant, we are learning. Despite all the struggles, each one of us can say that we are, to some degree, successful.

Science

Science is — struggling with 15 variable equations

— mixing chemicals, preparing solutions, breaking test tubes
— becoming lost in a sea of numbers
— "organized knowledge"
— Herbert Spencer
— looking for leaves in the rain
— discovering the basis on which life exists
— finding force and velocity of every imaginable mass at every possible instant when dropped from every fathomable height
— learning to see the beauty, realizing the majesty, the complexity of the universe; discovering a minute portion of the overwhelming eminence of the mind of the Creator.

Graded quizes are being returned.
Groans arise from the class.
Suddenly, there is a sound of crumpling paper
and a lone soul raises his arm.
The class is hushed.
Suddenly the arm snaps forward and a crumpled wad whizzes through the air, landing a good distance from the wastebasket.
Keith smiles as he reaches for his yardstick. A quick approximation is taken and the verdict returned.

"Ready? Type." These words were often heard coming from the mouth of Mary Swartley as her watchful eyes skimmed over her class during another timed typing.

Balance sheets and practice sets in accounting brought frustration to the hearts of many students. Would anything ever balance?

General Business class covered everything from investments to planning a budget. This year students faced heavier homework load because the course was compressed from a full year into a semester. The pain of homework was assuaged by the thought that someday all the studying would prove to be helpful in preparing us to enter the business world.

Once upon a time there were six young men who knew in their hearts that married life was only a passing dream. So, wishing to erase their ignorance in the ways of the home, they enrolled in Bachelor Living class led by Elaine Clymer. There they learned not only how to work a sewing machine and bake cookies, but to stay healthy, save money when shopping, and conserve energy. They'll survive.

The aroma of fresh paint and clay fills the air. Creative minds are at work. This is the impression one gets when stepping into the art room. Here, feelings and ideas are expressed about life through paintings, pottery, and many other imaginative projects.

Just as God molds and shapes us the way He wishes, art students can use that freedom to let their imaginations soar. Contrary to what some people think, art class is not a wasteful way to spend an hour. Many exciting and important things can be discovered about oneself by shaping a clay pot or sketching a nature scene.

Truly we can say that art is for the ambitious spirit.

Industrial Arts

If you're a beginner in woodworking you could take General Shop and draft your dream; then try one of the several wood courses available and make your dream become a reality.

Learning the secrets of a master craftsman, using your hands to create something unique, drafting a plan, and feeling the real joy of success are all part of what it means to be a craftsman in one of Wilbur's industrial arts classes.

This year there was a new shop class offered at Bethany. Building trades met for the first three periods of every day throughout the year. The five mambers of the class, instructed by Joe Christophel, spent the time remodeling the barn.

Concert Choir is

- — the art of singing "fresh eggs" style
- — keeping in tune by taking "cow steps"
- — impressing Diane with an open mouth (even though it is only a yawn)
- — hanging from hooks while singing "And He Shall Purify"
- — singing "For Unto Us" without the "s"
- — wondering if the audience will really understand what the meaning of "Gloria in Eggshell is"
- — the satisfaction of a concert well done after many hours of intense practice

Music

Being a member of Chamber Singers involves early morning practices, coffee and donuts, and noisy noon practices. This year there were 15 members in the ensemble. The group got their act together quickly and pulled off several successful performances, mainly due to their dedication and musical awareness. A hymn-sing at Pleasant View and a program at Oaklawn were among the programs we gave.

Discordant sounds, diligent practice, and beautiful music are all part of Bethany's orchestra. This year's orchestra is the largest ever. Karen Weaver has been working with the group, and one can hear a great improvement since the beginning of the school year.

In addition to the full orchestra, there are instrumental ensembles and the combined BCHS-GHS orchestra. There is a brass quartet, flute trio, and woodwind trio. These groups are under the supervision of Diane Schrock.

After four years and 36 defeats, the 1979 Bethany track team returned with experience to pull out three hard-earned victories under the able guidance of Coach Roy Hartzler.

Spirit and effort were high as the team sent two competitors to sectionals. John Metzger tied the high-jump record and Wes Parker broke his own 330-yard low hurdles record. The team looks forward to the 1980 season with high hopes of shattering new records.

Baseball

In the eyes of the players and coach Dan Bodiker the 1979 baseball team had quite a successful season. The overall record was 11 wins and 11 losses. Some of the highlights of the season were beating Bremen and Northridge in the regular season and beating Fairfield 10-0 in the Goshen sectional. Another high point for the team and especially for Randy Graber was his no-hitter which he pitched against Marion Bennett for a fine 3-0 victory.

The varsity girls volleyball team had an up and down season. With an emotional team, the group had a hard time playing consistently. Although they were undefeated in the Midland Athletic Conference Tourney, the highlight of the season was defeating Fairfield in two games. However, the results of sectionals proved that although the team had potential, it wasn't always evident during the games.

Boy's basketball this year at Bethany consisted of much more than merely winning and losing ball games. During the course of the season, many attitudes were changed and many concepts were redefined, such as sacrifice: after school practice from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., pain: from the early stretch to the locker room unwind, hustle: playing cards in a back-room casino of the South Bend ghetto; plurality: in winning rather than losing games, in having two varsity coaches rather than one, three teams striving for the same goals but on different levels, and in the end, victory: because when you're playing basketball you're winning.

We reached our destination, Toronto, after a sleepless night of travelling. We spent the first two days in the city, and visited the Ontario Parliament, Casa Loma, the Ontario Science Center, Kensington Markets and the C.N. Tower.

The third day we all donned penguin suits and waddled through the tunnels under Niagara Falls. After visiting two museums we wandered, starving, through the streets of Niagara looking for a meal within our dwindling budgets. A day in Dearborn, Michigan ended senior trip.

Long noon hours are one of our most important times together here at Bethany. In these times we play games, have meetings, cram for tests, get rowdy in the library, roam the halls, and in general have a good time. Another important part of our school day is study halls. Once a week in all but lab classes, we have study hall. We decided to devote four pages of the book to these times and dedicate it to you, the student. —Editor

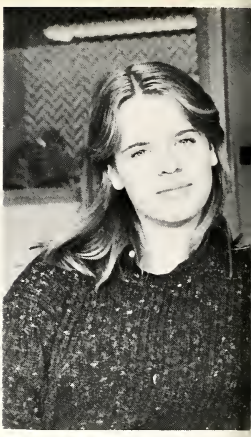
Hello,..MOM?,
I am being held captive in the WIT room here at Bethany, my goal is to try and escape by 10:30 p.m. this evening, Feb. 21, 1900. Please pray for me,.. I need all the help I can get.....

ICYE



Dunja Moeller

After spending about six months here together with you, I'd like to share some of my feelings about Bethany (it is a good time to do it just now, because today is a kind of turning point in my exchange year. Today (February 20) I start to work with disturbed children and it means that from now on you won't see me at Bethany very much any more).

I think Bethany has been an important part of my year. It has been interesting to attend a school that asks its students to think about world problems, peace, human relations, Christianity, different life styles and values of life. I have sensed Bethany having its own spirit of togetherness that is hard to find in many schools any more. I don't glorify Bethany, but I like it because it is so human as a school.

I am also glad that you have so many things like Interterm, fish fry, senior trip, and numerous activities the SBA organizes. They are all good things to bring students and teachers closer to each other and to make us feel that we are all together and on our way to somewhere. When I'm back in Finland I think I will miss your chapels a lot. It was interesting to hear so many people with different viewpoints and messages.

All of you at Bethany have been part of my year, experiences, and daily life. Thank you for making my time at your school positive! I'm full of good memories and there are some persons that I really want to thank especially just now and here.

Thanks, Ev for your daily friendly wink.

Thank you, John for your everlasting patience, listening, and helpfulness.

Thanks, Diane for being so understanding and more like a classmate than a teacher.

Thanks, Pauline for giving me the most touching experience I had at Bethany. It was listening to you singing the song you had composed a week before. KIITOS! (Pauline knows some Finnish that I taught her during the music theory classes when Diane wasn't watching us.)

Thanks, Wesley for "being there".

Judith, I know you will start to laugh and giggle now but you are one of the greatest personalities I've ever met. Your way of communicating with people impressed me the whole year through.

Oh, Dwight! Je veux tu dire que tu est une personne tres interessant et charmant. J'amie beaucoup les discussions avec toi. Probably see you in Paris!

Thanks, Rik for choking me, making me laugh, driving me crazy, and cheering me up daily!

Seventy-five percent of my family is attending Bethany this year. Thank you Jeff, Cindy, Roy, and Lois for taking me as a full member and just as I am.

Thanks a lot, Dunja. You are the person I learned to know deepest and best. I found a friend in you.

Thank you Concert Choir! I never laughed as much as with you. I think I will remember you as we were in practices, working hard to get a new song to "sound right". I remember Diane's frustration as we were not listening or trying, and our frustration with the strange new chords and difficult details. And then, after singing something again and again, we suddenly "got it"; the rythm, the words, and the tune all started to match together. Diane's eyes started to twinkle. She screamed with joy, waved her hands, and moved her enthusiasm into us. I guess I'll never forget that feeling!

Bill Kilburn is our ICYE student this year. He is spending the year in Falkenberg, Sweden. Here is an excerpt from a letter that Bill wrote to Bethany:

"Personally I feel I am growing very much — and I certainly feel I could use that. Many issues face me as a Christian and as a teenager that don't in suburban America. When people suspect you may be "religious" they don't ask what denomination you belong to but, "Oh, do you believe in God?"

Bill Kilburn

I think words are things which are remaining eternally. Therefore I want to write something which is really important. I don't want to write a long story about how glad I am that I can be here, because you all know that already.

> In order to live, the most > important thing is to be.
> To break through into Light, Love,
> power and Truth.
> Our nature thirsts for perfection.
> Not this human perfection, which > is a perfection of the ego and which > is a barricade for the divine way, > but this perfection, which has the power > to manifest eternal Truth on earth.

It is not our duty to repeat all the time what mankind has already done, but it is our duty to reach now realizations and undreamt mysteries. Time, soul, and world is our field of work; vision, hope, and creative imagination our driving power; will, thought, and work are our tool.

I don't want you so much to remember me, but rather these words, because they are timeless and they will stay the same during the centuries. But I will change. Every new minute I am another person than I was the minute before. I won't stay the same. I will change because I like the change.

Thank you very much,
I love you all.

Retrofitting

In an effort to make Bethany more energy efficient, workmen retrofitted the entire school, installing a new central heating system to replace 35 old furnaces, double-paned windows and a new entranceway. The Industrial Arts "barn" was remodelled by the Building Trades class, providing a large new area for the arts department in addition to the shop classes.

Sophomores

Last year we came to Bethany to begin our high school years. With us we brought our timid and quiet selves, our fears of "fitting in" and of making friends. We are sophomores now, still the same people, but with many of our fears removed. And we are still growing in last year's friendships and developing new ones.

Juniors

As freshmen we received much needed attention, much as a younger brother or sister may.

As sophomores we spent many of our spare moments concentrating on being . . . "cool".

As juniors we have already shown during OUR week — that is, October 29-November 2, the week of no seniors — what great spirit, and what grand tastes we have as a class. (Please note: This is not referring to junior clash day or farmer /hobo day. Those days merely illustrated our humor.)

Surely we, the incoming seniors, will finally be looked up to with our long deserved respect and awe.

Seniors

"To everything there is a season and a time to every purpose under the heavens."

A time to reminisce
A time to look ahead
A time to set goals
A time to accomplish goals
A time to search for colleges
A time to apply for scholarships
A time for being together
A time for parting

Our four seasons here are past. Now there are new paths to follow. We will seek God's guidance in the seasons ahead.

Where do Hesston College students come from?

Mary Lehman plays on the women's volleyball team.

This fall 55 Hesston College students are from Indiana and Michigan. Twenty-one of those graduated from Bethany. Half of the Hesston student body comes from homes at least 800 miles from Kansas.

Ask Mary Lehman about classes or dorm life or anything at Hesston. She can probably tell you better than we can.

Hesston students come from:

Kansas	25%
Pennsylvania	10
Ohio	8
Iowa	7
Indiana	6
Illinois	5
Colorado	4
Nebraska	4
Oregon	3
Michigan	3

Be the greatest

Learn to Serve

It's tough to get ahead these days. People pushing, shoving . . . climbing their way to the top . . . stepping on others as they go. Looking out for Number One.

It wasn't different in Jesus' day. Even his closest disciples wanted to be on top . . . wanted to be the greatest in His kingdom. Jesus wasn't surprised. He simply tied a towel around His waist, washed their grubby feet and said the greatest in the kingdom is the servant of all.

Serving? Hardly glamorous!! But, it's the mark of greatness.

Interested in that kind of greatness? Eastern Mennonite College is. For more than 60 years, EMC has been teaching students how to serve . . . as nurses, business persons, pastors, scientists, teachers . . . or whatever they choose.

There are unlimited opportunities for those with a servant attitude. Want to know more? Write J. David Yoder and ask for EMC's school calendar and catalog.
